Overview

The Master of Social Work degree is a professional degree which prepares students through the development of advanced generalist skills for practice with individuals, families, groups, organizations and communities within diverse systems and settings. Students graduate from our program as advanced social workers, clinicians, group facilitators, supervisors, advocates, and researchers. The master's program in social work at UW-Whitewater prepares students for specialized practice in field such as clinical social work, substance abuse counseling, school social work, medical/hospice social work, and gerontology.
